Status of C-4

Bill C-4 was not debated on Wednesday, November 2, and is not on the Projected Order of Business for Thursday, November 3. Several immigration issues were raised in the House yesterday, including the presence in Canada of the former head of Iran's state-owned bank, the alleged allocation of border security funds to the G8/G20 summit, and the impact of the proposed electoral map changes on immigrant communities. Nothing directly relating to C-4 was raised. Today, the House will debate C-20, the Fair Representation Act, which, due to a closure motion passed yesterday, will only receive a maximum of one more day of debate after today. It remains to be seen when C-4 will be debated again, but it will likely not be before the break next week.
